Product Description

Glutathione CAS 70-18-8 sweet tea extract

Description

The tripeptide glutathione is composed of three amino acids: glycine, cysteine, and glutamic acid. It is one of the body's most important endogenous antioxidants and is necessary for protecting cells from oxidative damage and maintaining cellular integrity.

Owing to its antioxidant properties, glutathione is a helpful material for numerous medical and aesthetic applications. It helps get rid of free radicals, which are harmful chemicals that can damage cells and speed up the aging and sickness process.

Another well-known benefit of glutathione is its potential role in skin-lightening and brightening effects. Because it is believed to inhibit the formation of melanin, the pigment that gives skin its color, it is a sought-after ingredient in skincare treatments designed to address hyperpigmentation and uneven skin tone.

Application

1. Antioxidant Supplements: Dietary supplements containing glutathione are known to boost overall health and wellness and strengthen antioxidant function.
2. Skin Lightening Products: Glutathione is commonly added to skincare products, such as soaps, lotions, and serums, to alleviate hyperpigmentation and promote a more even skin tone.
3. Support for Detoxification: Due to its role in cellular detoxification, glutathione is used in health products and supplements that aid the body's natural detoxification processes.
